HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY

City of Winslow Leases High School

The Winslow City Council and the Greenland School Board in separate meetings voted to lease the High School Building to the City of Winslow. February and March will be spent in cleaning painting, and repairing the building with the help of community volunteers. The area that held the high school library will be the future home of the Winslow Public Library. The Friends of the Library will be moving the Friends Book Store into one of the rooms, the Washington County Sheriff's Dept will occupy a room as a Sub Station replacing the one that used to be in the school administration building, the Winslow Centennial Committee has voted to use the revenue from the Centennial last September to set up a Winslow Museum to house the memorabilia that was collected and donated during the centennial, and the Friends of the Library are planning a computer lab in the room next to the old library.

This is an exciting venture not only will it preserve a landmark of the community but give it a new life and purpose. Even though the building is sound in structure, there is much that needs to be done. If you have a skill or talent or just want to help out call or sign up at either City Hall 479-634-3901 or Winslow Library. 479-634-5405.

Organization of the Month
Winslow Community Meals

In about 1986 the Winslow Community Meals was started under the umbrella of the Winslow Community Development Council. Dr. Janet Titus, Annie Merrifield and Harold Fawks were instrumental in establishing the program. The first meals were served at the Methodist Church, they were also served in various other churches, the Cannery, the Winslow American Cafe, and the Fire Station. This year WCM renovated and moved into the old Cannery Building.

The mission of the Winslow Community Meals Program is to feed the elderly and indigent of the Winslow area. The program is a private non-profit organization. With the aid of many volunteers and one employed cook approximately 440 meals a month are served in the dining room and as many as 350 meals per month on the delivery route. Winslow Community Meals is not a federally funded program. The funds used for this program are the Medicaid payments for a limited number of shut-ins, grants, and donations. Meals are served Monday through Friday at 12:00 noon with a requested donation of $3.00 per meal, those unable to pay will not be turned away. The building is open mornings for people to come in for coffee, play games, work puzzles and visit with one another.

The van currently in use was provided by a state grant. The insurance, maintenance, fuel, and tires is the responsibility of WCM.. It is used for delivering meals, taking local residents to the doctor, pharmacy, etc.

All donations go to support the program but it is never enough. At least once a year a fund-raising dinner is held to raise money to help meet expenses. Winslow Community Meals will hold a Valentine's Dinner on Sunday, February 12th from 11:00 AM to 1:30 PM. The menu will include Ham or Brisket with all the trimmings, drink, a salad bar and a dessert bar. Takeouts will be available.

Winslow 4-H Club News

by Nancy Hill

The Winslow 4-H club has been busy. Our shooting sports members went to another competition at the end of Decembers. Again, 2 of our local members were in the top 3. Perry Campbell won 2nd overall in the senior air rifle and Sara Hill, 3rd for junior air rifle. The competition was tough and everyone did well.

The Winslow 4-H club has been working on their annual record books for the past 2 weeks. The record books were due on January 17 and we had 15 members turn one in. The book is a record of everything that the 4-H'er has done in the past 4-H year with their club and on their own. It covers everything for their main project, any other projects, community service, and leadership. It also includes a story about themselves in 4-H and pictures. These books will be judged on the county level. Any trophy winners will then be judged at the state level. Those that completed a record book will receive a ticket to the Achievement Banquet in March and be honored with a dinner and award.

There are many activities coming up in the next few months for any member to participate in at the county level. Demonstration Day, Share-the-Fun, BBQ, Breads, and Dairy contests are to name a few. These contests can be fun, creative, and great learning experiences. Members also get to meet 4-H'ers from other clubs throughout the county. Several of our members will be going to the county committee meeting to help with the organization and planning of these events.

Our next meeting will be on February 8 at the fire station directly after school. We will draw the winning ticket for the quilt raffle at this time. If you want a chance to win the 4-H quilt, you may purchase a ticket from any 4-H member for $1.00 each or 6 for $5.00.

Winslow Spanish Club News

by Janice Jorgenson

My calendar says 24 days till take-off time to sunny Spain! We are ready to go. The trip is paid, but we still need some funds for spending money. As is our custom, the Winslow Spanish Club will be doing pizzas for Superbowl Sunday at Sky-Vue Lodge. We will begin at about 4:00 PM, and go through half-time of the big game. So give us a call at Sky-Vue at 634-2003 on Sunday, February 5th, and we will bake you a fresh, hot, Sky-Vue pizza for you to take home and enjoy as you cheer on your favorite team.

We also want to thank everyone who has supported us over the past 2 years of fund raising. A special thanks to the WinFest Committee for your gift to the kids. It was an extra bonus that we were not expecting, but it is greatly appreciated. Thank you for helping to develop the minds and expand the horizons of this special group of Winslow students.

Winslow Gardener

By Jean Collins

It seems like ages ago that Mayor Randy Jarnagan asked the Winslow Master Gardeners if we would help beautify Winslow for its Centennial celebration in September, 2005. Support for the project was very positive. Well-wishers and gardeners from all over stopped to offer words of encouragement and support as we planted, and planted, and planted. Mary Anderson, Marilyn Harnish, Jean Collins, Cathy Hughes and Art Hughes worked diligently and harmoniously to create some really attractive flower beds. Art and Cathy provided gallons and gallons of water to the "Rock at the Y". We particularly enjoyed having a garden float in the big parade; that was a blast!

I wrote about the Centennial Project for Garden Thyme, which is the newsletter for the Washington County Master Gardeners (WCMG) and received many compliments and comments on the project especially about the community spirit behind the project. I was told that the Winslow Beautification Project is a model for other communities to follow in terms of support and working together on a community project. Of course, I immediately thought about proposing the Winslow Beautification Project as the WCMG "Project of the Year" award given in April. It's a nice award, and I intend to GO FOR IT on behalf of Winslow.

To support the Project of the Year award application, I will need to submit photographs, news articles, letters of support, etc., but we particularly need photographs. I have lots of digital photos of the various flower beds, but I NEED PHOTOS OF THE MASTER GARDENER FLOAT. If anyone took photos of the float in the parade and if you would be willing to share them, would you please let me know. If you have photos in digital format, please send them to me at Jean.Collins@nau.edu If you have printed photographs, I'd really appreciate borrowing them long enough to scan them, phone number 634-2044 or drop them off at City Hall. Be sure to put your name on them and I will make sure they get back to you. Even if we don't win an award, it will be worth a try. The best prize of all is the appreciation received from the Winslow community. If we do win the award, I'll bring it down to City Hall for permanent display.

I've been asked if we plan to continue the beautification project, and the answer is yes. In 2006, we are going to get serious about asking folks in Winslow for any extra plants, bulbs, shrubs, flowers, ornamental grasses from folks they can give to the project. It would be great if folks would just bring extras down to the Winslow Farmer's Market on Saturday mornings when it starts up again.

A quote in honor of St. Valentine's Day: If I had a single flower for every time I think about you, I could walk forever in my garden.

The Red Brick

By Arlen Davidian
© January 29, 2006

My uncle, long passed, was born several years before the beginning of the past century. The family was a pioneering family who migrated across the plains in a covered wagon from St Louis, Missouri to Walla Walla, Washington, then eventually to Oakland, California. The family was hard working and close knit except for my grandfather who was declared legally dead after mysteriously disappearing for more than seven years. I don't know much about my grand dad except to say that he would leave the family stranded for long periods. He would return on occasion long enough to disrupt the family and bring another kid to the table for my burdened grand mother and her two eldest sons to feed.

Like I said, this was a close knit family. My two oldest uncles worked to protect the growing family afflicted by an absentee father. Yet in spite of the hardships, the two brothers bought their family a house in a decent section of town and established themselves in the community.

While growing up, I can remember rolling around on the oriental rugs in the living room and playing with a pressed sheet metal dog. The lamp by my uncles chair was always fascinating, but I can't remember why. My mother, the family's baby, and twenty years junior to her oldest brother, told me that as we would turn onto the road to their house and start up the hill, I would remind her that here we'd be lavished with "gum, candy, grapes."

It was here at this home that I can remember earning my first wages. I was probably four at the time, and was blessed with more than my share of energy which left me with a reputation in the Parker household as a "squirmer." On one occasion I was undoubtedly interrupting the family conversation with my antics. When my uncle on several occasions that afternoon sat me on his knee I would become rapidly bored. Finally in desperation, he made me a deal. "Arlen, if you can sit still here for just five minutes, I'll give you this," he said holding up a shiny nickel.

I'll never forget that split-second bit of negotiation to which I rapidly agreed. I can also still remember fighting to remain still while being attacked by jangled nerves and a sore backside. I endured and with pride in my accomplishment stuffed my first wages in my pocket. To this day, I can remember standing at the counter in the grocery store carefully choosing, guess what? Yep, hard candy, that my mother graciously "allowed" me to share with my brothers.

From that long past environment, came a great deal of heritage base on stories of my family that lingers in my life to this day. My two oldest uncles "hoboed" across the US three times catching rides on trains and living in "hobo jungles" during the depression in order to send home every dime they could scrounge up. Those were tough times. Town police would frequently raid the jungles and beat up the homeless men hunkered down among the junk trying to fight off the cold. My uncles said that in all the times their camps were invaded, they were never disturbed because they made it a habit to keep themselves clean and shaved, and their camp clean and organized.

It was shortly after the turn of the century and shortly after my mother was born that my oldest uncle saved out enough money to buy the first bicycle on their street. He described it as a beauty, with all the trimmings; you know, it had two wheels and a handle bar, and was endowed with a real leather seat. Their house was on a rather steep hill, and the road was hard packed dirt and gravel. He took every opportunity to practice riding his new means of transportation. It was on one of his trips to the store that he encountered a red brick in the middle of the road. That brick was miniscule in relation to the breadth of the road, but my uncle said that he focused so intently on the obstacle that, well, the disastrous encounter with the red brick resulted in skinned knees and elbows.

That simple story has reminded me for these many years that I too am inclined to concentrate on that red brick on occasion. When obstacles present themselves in my daily living, and I allow myself to step back and assess the merits and possible solutions, the answers become clear. But, when I worry and focus too intently on the obstacles that crop up in the road that winds through the day, I too, often have my own disastrous encounters with that red brick.

The Barefoot Peddler

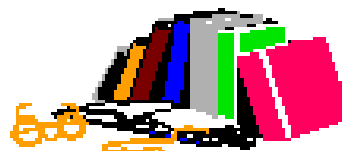

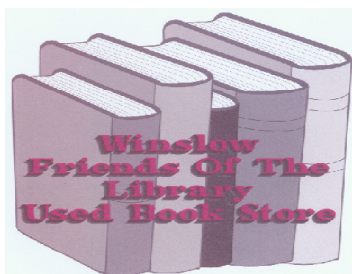

By Patty Davis

A quick update on the what's happening at the Peddler. The barn and house are closed until April 1st while we move, rearrange, price, sort and inventory. You can call the cell number (479-650-2269) for an appointment but if you do, you'll have to excuse the mess up here. My plan is to have as much inventory as possible for you to choose from ... including those items ready to go to the malls. For my neighbors from Mountainburg, Winslow and the surrounding area, tagged mall items will be discounted 25% which amounts to quite a savings on some really NICE things. Not to worry, there will be plenty of items priced a dollar or less.

We will begin the season with an outdoor sale in March (weather permitting) offering some REALLY great buys. Watch for flyers and a notice in the March Within Winslow. Then the first sale will be April 1st (no foolin') in the house and the red barn ... both will be full by then! Then the Peddler will be open every Saturday until Thanksgiving weekend 2006 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. So mark your calendar!

The move from Grapevine (Tontitown) to Grapevine (Rogers) is done. I have down-sized from four booths to two (a Christmas booth and Craft Supply/Gift booth) but I'm hoping, along with the other vendors, that the new location...a VERY BUSY one in Rogers...will mean more lookers and more sales! The new booth at Country Classics in Tontitown looks promising as well as the big booth at Treasures in Ft. Smith. Two "walls" at Treasures also have paintings, unframed and framed prints...plus another wall of craft supplies. If you're looking for books, magazines and kitchen collectibles, you'll find those in the booth at Grandma's Attic in Lowell. For even more collectibles, dishes and glassware, visit All My Treasures in Fayetteville, Sisters' in Alma and Antiques & Stuff in Roland.

As you have gathered by now, the Barefoot Peddler is located in lots of places, so be sure to visit there too. See you in April on the mountain!!

There will be a change in the Library hours beginning February 1st, 2006. Twenty hours is the maximum the Library can be open under the current funding. It has to be manned by a county employee. We are allowed volunteers but only if a county employee is present. This means cutting our Saturday hours and closing on Sunday. The Library will now be open Tuesday and Thursday from 9:00 AM -5:00 PM and Saturday 9:00 AM to 1:00 PM. I'm sorry for the inconvenience this will cause our Sunday patrons.

On the bright side I am excited and anxious to get started cleaning and painting the old school library to make it our public library. I am looking for lots of volunteers to help with this project. I have a sign-up sheet in the library, if you have a few hours to spare we sure can use your help. The sooner we get it done the sooner we can move.

In answer to the question many have asked, "Yes, I will miss being downtown. I will miss the trains coming through, the Farmer's Market in season, the tourists running in asking for the nearest gas station or rest room, the Saturday morning coffee drinkers from the Mercantile, the general atmosphere of a small rural town and the camaraderie it projects, but most of all I'm going to miss that old original tin ceiling in the library. I really love that thing and the building that houses it.

Here I've rambled on and haven't even mentioned all the great new books that have arrived. This month we have received a variety. For the early readers there are two books by John Lithgow, "Marsupial Sue" and "Marsupial Sue Presents" "Dumpy's Happy Holiday" by Julie Edwards will catch their eye also. For a little older group “Minerva Clark Gets a Clue” by Karen Karbo and “Wolf Brother” by Michelle Paver may catch your eye. “Seven Spools of Thread: A Kwanzaa Story” by Angela Shelf Medearis, will introduce a child to holidays from another ethnic culture. “Poetry Speaks to Children” is an introduction to poetry for children.

Christian Fiction readers will enjoy the next two books in the House of Winslow series by Gilbert Morris, “Unlikely Allies” and “High Calling”. Kristen Heitzmann has written a sequel to “Secrets” entitled “Unforgotten”. You will find both books in the Winslow Library. “Innocent Libertine” and “Noble Fugitive” by T. Davis Bunn and Isabella Bunn are also available. The favorite genres of mystery, suspense, and romance are well represented by “The Cat Who Dropped a Bombshell” by Lilian Jackson Braun; “Death Dance”, by Linda Fairstein; “Gone” by Lisa Gardner; “Capitol Murder”, by William Bernhardt; “Run Before the Wind”, a reprint from an early book by Stuart Woods; “Mad River Road”, by Joy Fielding; and the latest by Fayetteville author, Joan Hess, “Malpractice in Maggody”.

Tiny Tidbits

by Heather James-Jobe

Customers who come by the Winslow Mercantile often have such interesting memories to share. One such woman, traveling from Tulsa, stopped by to do some holiday shopping. After making her purchases, she told me of her travels within Winslow. As a young girl, she would ride with her grandmother all over the hills and hollers of Winslow as the woman sold corsets to all the country ladies. She remembers waiting in a 50's model car while Grandma peddled her wares, and she told me she thought of Winslow as a huge place, considering how many miles they drove to make a sell!

I always love hearing and writing about the memories that give our community such a rich History. If you have any bits of Winslow lore, let's see if we can share - The “Merc” is open every Saturday morning at 9:00 am and I'm always tickled to hear new stories.
