If you enjoy the paper and look forward to it coming out every month there are different ways you can add your support:

The Winslow Museum has been a busy place the last couple of months. We have been meeting the last Thursday of every month. We would like to invite anyone who is interested in the history of Winslow and wanting to volunteer in the museum to please attend our meeting. This month we will be having a "work" meeting on August 28th at 5:00 PM. We will be doing some cleaning and re-arranging in the museum. Hope to see you there. We are also very excited about a new exhibit featuring the history of Winfest. Winslow has been hosting this festival for many years now and we received many wonderful donation to create the display. Special thanks to Gene and Tanya Farris for all of the hard work. The display will be up for a couple of months, so please come by and enjoy it. The museum will also entertain a group from the Washington County Historical Society in October. We are very much looking forward to their visit.

FOR 3 - 5 YEAR OLDS

Both the H.I.P.P.Y. program and Kiddie Kampus still have opening available for 3 - 5 year old children. H.I.P.P.Y. is a free program for the children and Kiddie Kampus is an A.B.C. pre-school program through the state of Arkansas and is based on a sliding income scale. It has been proven time and again that children with a pre-school background do much better in school than those without. See their flyers at the end of this newsletter.

Winslow HIPPY News

Home Instruction for Parents of Preschool Youngsters (HIPPY) is a parent involvement, school readiness program that helps parents prepare their 3, 4, and 5 year old children for success in school and beyond. We believe the parent or guardian is the child's first - and most important - teacher. We provide the parent with carefully developed, age appropriate lessons, books and supplies (crayons, scissors, glue, etc.) designed to strengthen their children's cognitive skills, early literacy skills, social/emotional and physical development. We offer monthly group meet ups that focus on learning and FUN such as fire safety at the Winslow Fire Station and a ride on the train in the spring. This program is FREE for qualifying families.

Please call Beth Ashbaugh at 479-957-0700 for more information or to sign up and please help me spread the word about this important program.

Chickens, Hogs and Cats and Dogs and all others in the Animal Kingdom

It has been brought to the attention of the People's City Council that your owners are letting you run loose in Winslow. This has been causing a nuisance to the entire City of Winslow, besides it is very dangerous to you as those cars go whizzing by and the Bicyclists and Walkers could be carrying Big Sticks.

Some People are saying you are getting in their yard and destroying them. Yes, we know you are only relieving them of bugs and ticks but you must stay in your own fenced area for this and respect your neighbor's yards. Another thing that is pesky, is getting into your neighbor's garbage cans. You must not do that, don't even get in your own People's garbage and scatter it. That is a big NO-NO. The People have an animal control unit in the Washington County Sheriff's Office and are advised to call 479-444-5700 and as for Animal Control if they have a problem. Now none you want to be hauled off to "animal jail". You may never be able to come back to your home in Winslow, so please abide by the rules.

Thank you to the Animal Kingdom.

Winslow Library News

By Jean Cosgrove

Friends of the Winslow Library have always been a support group that enables the library to buy everything from paper goods to computers. Now they are asking for your help to stay afloat. Help in any way you can, use the used book store, help restock the shelves in the book store, help with fundraisers and ideas for fundraisers, help with our monthly bake sales by bringing and/or buying lots of baked goods, and probably dozens of things I haven't even thought of. Beverly Simpson is the president of Friends of the Library and you can see her selling baked goods the first Saturday of each month; often with her and Linda Dysart and Goldia Stainbrook. If you get there early enough you may find some of Billie Sue Hughes pastry, some of Erin Chapman's Cinnamon Rolls, or some of Janice Jorgenson's bread products and other caring people.

The Friends monthly meeting is at 1:00 PM at the library after the bake sale, first Saturday of the month. The next time you see Beverly or Linda might be at the sale or serving chili at the Christmas Parade, say thanks for Volunteering.

September is a busy month at the Library. September 16th there will be a short meeting at 1:00 to try to start a book discussion group. The Genealogy Program originally planned for September will be moved to October because of the busy schedule. You can sign up in the library if you are interested. Please note which would be better for you, a Saturday class or an evening class.

September 27th the Authors Tours will be at the Winslow Library from 1:00 to 3:00 to visit with people and sign their new books.

There will be at least 5 authors and possibly more from Northwest Arkansas here.

The Used Book Store still offers some paperbacks and hard backs at the low price of $.25 and $.50. Jerry Bromley brought in a large box of westerns by Louis L'Armour and they flew off the shelf. We really need volunteers to help with the used book store. One advantage is you would be the first to know when your favorite books arrive. Sherry Rodgers, children's librarian with Washington County Library System, will resume story time on Tuesday, September 2nd at 12:00 noon at the Library. For the past several years the fall and winter session has been at the Fire Station, but this year it is coming back to the library. We need some committed parents/grandparents/guardians to bring their children to this free service provided by the Washington County Library System or we may lose the privilege of having the talents of Miss Sherry in our Library. This session the theme is "Where is your House?" It will be about people and animals and where they live. The series helps teach geography and science and is best for Kindergarten children to Third grade. This would be a great program for Homeschooled children.

Remember These Dates:

- Tuesday September 2nd at 12:00 Story-Time with Miss Sherry
- Saturday September 6th 1:00 Friends of the Library Meeting
- Tuesday September 16th at 1:00 Book Discussion Start-up Meeting
- Saturday September 27th at 1:00 - 3:00 Authors Tour, Authors from NW Arkansas with their recent books will visit with you and sign books. Refreshments served.-

How Much is Enough

By Arlen Davidian

Look at what's being told to us. Advertising uses them all. Are they lies? Well, in the purest sense, not necessarily. But is this basic reality? Hmmm!

Use more and it works better!
Use more, you save more!
Go more, and you get more!
Use our stuff and live longer!

I have been using a certain shaving gel for several years. When I started using this product, ads showed a huge, I mean HUGE handful of this bright blue gel was necessary in order to do an effective job. Yep, put a baseball size wad in your hands and rub them together and wow! Well, I tried it and got a tub full of lather. Was that enough? Yep to shave for the next two years and seven months. After a couple tries, I learned that a speck about the size of a pea was more than adequate. This made a can last about eight to ten months. Then came a "three can special" that had "33%" more! What a deal! Problem was, using the same pea-sized ball, the can lasted only about five months. More what? Air!

A large company that produced toothpaste ran continuous ads showing the bristles of a brush loaded with their product that lapped back over itself. A man applied for a job in upper level management promising to divulge a secret that would increase sales by ten percent in just a few weeks but only if he got the job. Think about it! Could you do that?

Am I missing something, or was the old math I learned wrong? Are the first and second premises a lie? Not necessarily. If you wish to bathe in foam, or scrub down your Mack truck, or decorate your half acre lawn, that baseball size wad might be barely enough. So, in that sense of "basic reality" it's the truth.

What about the third and fourth premises. Fly more you get more cuz you save more time to say more or do more or see more. That's true. But, really? Why not drive? Can you take a mule and enjoy the beauty in the depths of the Grand Canyon from 35,000 feet sitting in the aisle seat? How about taking the tram to the top of the mountain in Albuquerque, or wait nearby for Old Faithful Geyser to blow? Can you check out the gift shops along the main drag in Tucumcari? Can't do those from 35,000 feet either.

Does this knock out premises three and four?

Not necessarily. Take the plane and you can spend two days in the Smithsonian rather than fifteen minutes just before closing time if you drove. You can put more in that lecture or spend more time with your kids if you take a four hour flight rather than spend two days driving.

Is there a down-side to all this?

Absolutely! Maybe the ad that hammers us relentlessly about that magic potion that will solve all our ills really is a pack of lies. Have you ever wondered why they don't just say our new medicine stuff might make you live forever but,..... it might just kill you? Nope, the benefits are touted for seventeen seconds and the other forty-three seconds warn about what it might do.

What happened to those simple ads like the woman hanging out her laundry in the back yard. It didn't take all that elaborate equipment and stages and back drops and cameras and grips and directors just to advertise a powdered soap? Nope, just a camera, a woman wearing an apron in a calico dress, a string of rope, a couple of wooden clothes pins and about fifteen minutes in the hands of someone with a good imagination and the story was told.

Getting the message out is a very important aspect of free enterprise and the principle of capitalism. Billions of dollars are made and lost because of the good and ills of promoting products. Telling the story of a myriad products stands as a bulwark at the heart of our economy and is the fuel that helps keep the jobs that allow us to live the lives that we seek. Without it, we would be isolated to the few square miles that surround us. Getting the message out makes us aware that we can save time by flying or buy that gorgeous gown imported from France or eat luscious strawberries that came two thousand miles in a truck, or enjoy flowers flown in from Hawaii. All this and much, much more is at our fingertips because billions of dollars have been put in the hands of people to get their message out. Agents know it takes eighteen to twenty-two times telling the story to drill their message home. That used to be called brain-washing. Now it's called Advertising.

Oh, and about that job. Yep, he told his secret and got the job.

Make the hole in that tube of toothpaste ten percent bigger!

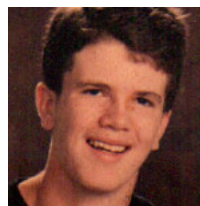

By the way! Bulova watch time is..... Said to be one of the best ads in history and only takes about two seconds!

And that, my friends, was enough!

Oghma Creative Media

Author Tour

Oghma Creative Media Author Tour will make an appearance at the Winslow Library on Saturday, September 27 from 1-3 p.m. We will meet and greet, visit with everyone and talk about some of our books, which we will bring along to sign. All authors are represented and published by Oghma Creative Media.

Scheduled to appear are Mike Miller, Velda Brotherton, Pamela Foster, John Biggs and Greg Camp.

BAYOU JESUS by M.G. Miller has been described as a gritty revelation of the destruction of a way of life.

Pamel Foster's RIDGELINE is by far the best literary western I've ever read and her new book NOISY CREEK combines humor with poignancy to tell a story of aging gracefully and well.

Greg Camp is the author of THE WILLING SPIRIT, VOLUME 1 OF THE DOWLAND SAGA, a sophisticated western of revenge and redemption.

John Biggs and his book is OWL DREAMS will also be there . It is a humorous mainstream novel with lots of Native American content.

Velda Brotherton's most recent books are ONCE THERE WERE SAD SONGS a story of two lonely people redeemed by love and WILDA'S OUTLAW, First of the Victorian Series, A Historical Western Romance set in Victoria, Kansas. She will have copies of some of her other books with her as well.

There may be a couple more authors that will make an appearance as well. So we may all be in for some surprises.

Come join us, sit and stay a while. We'll visit with you about writing or our books or anything you wish to talk about. We will have books available to purchase and we'll be glad to sign your copy.

Refreshments will be provided by Friends of the Winslow Library.

Velda promises to have a proof copy of her latest book, BEYOND THE MOON, due out September 30, with a book launch scheduled for Sunday, October 5. More about that at a later date.

Hope to see you all there. You'll have a grand time.

YOU THINK ABOUT THAT

By Wesley Wood

Hi, my name is Wesley Wood. I was born February 28, 1948 at Bunyard. I have been dealing with Cerebral Palsy from the first minute I discovered this world. I graduated Winslow High in 1966 with 3.0 average. I went on to higher schools and worked for Arkansas Western Gas Company Financial Department in Fayetteville retiring after 36 years. I have always paid my way and have not asked anyone for one dime. I have been honest and upfront with everyone I have ever dealt with. I may not walk as straight as most people. I may not speak as plain as most people. I may not be as strong and my hands may not work as well as most people. But my mind and my ability to think is up there with most and I have no problem saying over and above a lot. No, I'm not perfect in any way and yes, I've made mistakes. Lots of'em. And I've paid for'em. That brings us to the reasons for this ad. I am going to start sharing thoughts and facts about what I have learned in my mistakes and ups and downs of my past 66 years. Some will be political, some will be Biblical, and some may even be personal. However, they all will be facts or my opinion, which will be based on facts.

I mean "Facts" not "Theory". Basing your opinion or belief on theory is like starting to walk across a lake thinking you are going to get to the other side

Yeah, that's a teaser of what's to come. YOU THINK ABOUT THAT!

"Comedy Corner"

By David Gesn© 2014

Listen to the silence of the night. All alone on a clear moonlit night, the stars above does one observe. With wisdom do we conceive any effort that the past, present and future – though different entities are indeed as a whole. This night, for what one can see yet not touch, is the wisdom of the universe. The stars lay a path to immortality, eternity waits us. Time is but an illusion, for in eternity it is non-existent. Upon this night there is no beginning, no end. This night, "one" stands as the most beautiful existence upon the surface of the earth amongst all elements. Though conceived by the mind, wisdom is a spiritual energy presented to others from one's heart and by this presentation do we express the radiance of true love.

We search the heavens with imagination, and with patience realize our destiny. The stars are dead, yet molded by light. In the silence of the night, the universe is prolific poetry in motion. Upon this night, we view perfection and seek a deeper significance of our very own existence in a world of turmoil.

This night we see the power of Divinity in all its glory. "Listen, listen" to the silence of the night.

The Cavern (Part 6)

By David Gesn ©2014

History is sometimes off a tad. Columbus actually discovered the West Indies, but has been given credit of discovering America and why change anything now?

America, the New World, actually was inhabited way prior to Columbus, as many lands are when discovered. By one mural in the Cavern, it is a very distinct possibility that the Viking People were here way prior to Columbus, Ponce De Leon or a number of other discoverers.

What if, just, what if, the American Indian was actually, originally a transplant people from a mid-Eastern country, and or a Western Hemisphere country? It's merely a suggestion, no need to get any feathers ruffled!

Yet, what if there were hints to all of it? What if for whatever reason, man does not really want to know any of this?

What movie of Indian culture ever produced showed any tribe actually burying their dead? What animals did Arkansas not supposedly have, say 400 years ago, that are flourishing today in this great state? Look that up on the Internet, and then when you admire some paintings on the walls of the cavern, see what history has not recorded in justified fashion. Hallelujah!

Initially, I stated that Geologists would or may have a hard time explaining certain arrangements in the cavern. They are not the only people that may have a hard time attempting to figure out certain situations. A whole slew of folks are going to have a time of new study concerning events and structures of the past. Then again, maybe they will not wish to know certain arrangements. It may just change certain ways we humans actually think of things or maybe things we take for granted. Imagine that – Hallelujah! Someone recently suggested to me that “the past is the past, forget it and move on.” I somewhat disagree with that statement. It's by the past that we survive the present, and present ideas for the future. Even the negative of the past helps us along with the present and how to possibly avoid it in the future. Sometimes we have to experience the negative to realize the positive in any time zone.

Supposedly, the American Indian was of a paganistic nature, and many were adulterous – kind of like many of us today. Supposedly they had no concept of the true, one Word of God, and worshipped all the wrong things or ideals - kind of like modern man. Man today, has the one true Word of God - several of them, about 61,000 different translations to be exact! Hallelujah! Maybe on the walls of the cavern and it may be just certain tribes of peoples truly had the right concept of a spiritual existence way back when. Maybe the movies have it somewhat misconstrued and maybe much has been recorded by much myth, well, maybe. We all know that the Indian people had a recycling program as such and used everything from an animal kill or pretty much everything. A “natural” effect returned back to nature. Antlers were used for farming implements, and jewelry and weaponry. There wasn't any bones of humans present, at least in sight. We did not dig up anything though all of us were curious about our surroundings. Arrowheads, birdpoints were in and around the area, round skinners, and knives. There are other assets of the past present in the area of concern. All of us would probably be considered rather stupid in this day and time for not possessing anything for ourselves. Many people would never understand our actions. Maybe it's not for anyone to understand. If one sees it in entirety, as a whole, prior to it ever being stripped of its existence, then one can appreciate it as it is. Hallelujah!

NEED WASHING?

A little girl had been shopping with her Mom in Wal-Mart. She must have been 6 years old, this beautiful red haired, freckle faced image of innocence.

It was pouring outside. The kind of rain that gushes over the top of rain gutters, so much in a hurry to hit the earth it has no time to flow down the spout.. We all stood there, under the awning, just inside the door of the Wal-Mart.

We waited, some patiently, others irritated because nature messed up their hurried day.

I am always mesmerized by rainfall. I got lost in the sound and sight of the heavens washing away the dirt and dust of the world. Memories of running, splashing so carefree as a child came pouring in as a welcome reprieve from the worries of my day.

Her little voice was so sweet as it broke the hypnotic trance we were all caught in, 'Mom let's run through the rain,' She said.

'What?' Mom asked.

'Let's run through the rain!' She repeated.

'No, honey. We'll wait until it slows down a bit,' Mom replied.

This young child waited a minute and repeated: 'Mom, let's run through the rain..'

'We'll get soaked if we do,' Mom said.

'No, we won't, Mom. That's not what you said this morning, ' the young girl said as she tugged at her Mom's arm.

'This morning? When did I say we could run through the rain and not get wet? '

'Don't you remember? When you were talking to Daddy about his cancer, you said, ' If God can get us through this, He can get us through anything!'

The entire crowd stopped dead silent.. I swear you couldn't hear anything but the rain.. We all stood silently. No one left. Mom paused and thought for a moment about what she would say.

Now some would laugh it off and scold her for being silly. Some might even ignore what was said. But this was a moment of affirmation in a young child's life. A time when innocent trust can be nurtured so that it will bloom into faith.

'Honey, you are absolutely right. Let's run through the rain. If GOD lets us get wet, well maybe we just need Washing,' Mom said.

Then off they ran. We all stood watching, smiling and laughing as they darted past the cars and yes, through the puddles. They got soaked.

They were followed by a few who screamed and laughed like children all the way to their cars. And yes, I did.

I ran. I got wet. I needed washing.

Circumstances or people can take away your material possessions, they can take away your money, and they can take away your health. But no one can ever take away your precious memories...So, don't forget to make time and take the opportunities to make memories every day.

To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under heaven.

I HOPE YOU STILL TAKE THE TIME TO RUN THROUGH THE RAIN.

They say it takes a minute to find a special person, an hour to appreciate them, a day to love them, but then an entire life to forget them.

Take the time to live!!!

Keep in touch with your friends, you never know when you'll need each other --

And don't forget to run in the rain!
