Winslow's Annual Christmas Parade

The City of Winslow will sponsor their annual Christmas Parade on Saturday December 14, 2013. Anyone interested in participating should be at the school parking lot by 4:30 for line up. The parade will begin at the old school, go west along School St., to Main St. east along Winslow Blvd out to the Winslow Entrance Rock and back west along Winslow Blvd to Peak's Park where they will disassemble.

Everyone is invited to be in the parade by entering a float, a vehicle (motorized or non-motorized), a bicycle, motorcycle, horses, horse and buggies or wagons, what ever you can dream up, or just come and walk along.

Friends of the Winslow Library will again serve chili, crackers and hot chocolate and coffee inside the Mercantile at about 4:15. This is free of charge as a Thank You to the community for its support of the Library.

The Winslow Extension Club will have a Bake Sale fundraiser during the parade.

Here are a few pictures from previous years.

SELL YOUR CRAFTS AT THE LIBRARY

Friends of the Winslow Library invite all local crafters to set up their tables at the library on Nov 30th, Dec 7th, and Dec 14th to sell your crafts.

This is a great opportunity to make extra money for Christmas, give patrons the opportunity to shop local, and just a great time of fellowship. If you are new to the area or have a group who would like to raise some funds, please come join us.

Set up in the hallway of the old school at 9am and stay until 3pm each of these Saturdays. There are some tables available but it will be a good idea to bring your own. If you have any questions, please call Pam or Jean at the library 479-634-5405.

Apology to Velda

I want to apologize to Velda for failing to print her column in the November issue. It will be the first article printed below.

Velda's Words November

By Velda Brotherton

I have two new books out this month.

The Purloined Skull is a mystery set in a fictional county in Arkansas. I drew on all the experiences I had while working for the Observer, but some things are fictional, like the murder itself. Characters could be someone you know, or maybe you. This begins a mystery series A Twist of Poe, for which each title will be a twisted version of Edgar Allan Poe's titles. These are dark, gritty and sexy. In print and soon to be an Ebook

Once There Were Sad Songs is a love story about two people who go in search of the happiness they should have had and find each other. They must return to their old lives to settle some scores. Will they find each other again? It will be released October 28. An Ebook and will be in print in February.

Both of them can be found on my Kindle Page at Amazon along with my other books.. <http://www.tinyurl.com/7dr9mbn>

Don't forget that I have two audio books for those who like to listen to their books. They are available on all types of players including Kindle, your computer from which you can burn a CD to listen in the car, MP3, etc.

They are: Stone Heart's Woman and Montana Promises, both available at Audible, Amazon and iTunes.

If you're Christmas shopping books make lovely gifts for those you have trouble shopping for.

Velda's Words

December

I have a very special Christmas offer for my readers. The Montana Trilogy is available in a special edition boxed set with a spanking new cover that POPs. It would make a terrific Christmas gift for those on your list who have an E reader. It's available at <http://www.amazon.com/dp/B00GU45SSE> The three books also have lovely new covers that match the special edition cover. The boxed set is the same as getting one book free.

My latest book out in print and Ebook is Once There Were Sad Songs, a vintage women's fiction published by Wild Rose Press. My first mystery, and #1 in A Twist of Poe series is The Purloined Skull, available in print and soon to be an E Book. This one takes place in the Ozarks and is a lot of fun but dark.

The easiest way to find my books is to go to Amazon, click on books, then type in Velda Brotherton. All 18 of them will come up and you can take your pick. Enjoy and shop for books for Christmas. They never fail to please.

I'm working on two new books, one the second in the Victorian series. A Western Historical romance set in Kansas in 1875. This one is Rowena's Captain, second to Wilda's Outlaw.

The other book is Beyond The Moon, a mainstream love story. A wounded warrior home after 9 years as a POW in Vietnam meets his angel. Their battle to emotionally bring him back home from the horrors of that captivity. I hope to have it published in 2014.

“Comedy Corner”

By David Gesn©2013

Eventually all sorrow diminishes. The greater the sorrow, the longer it shall endure. The world sat sullen, uncommunicating with decency. Man wore many faces and there became ignorance upon the very existence of those that were believed intelligent.

Then it happened. A tiny infant was bestowed up this earth, a gift from the Almighty. This child would eventually assert himself in a fashion of intelligence and dignity never portrayed amongst mankind, the birth of a Heavenly King, a free gift that man would not fully understand till He would depart from an earthly existence.

The discussion concerning money is most prevalent as man celebrates this birth each year. Nothing greater on earth could compare to the love and faith this baby would present to His fellow man! Yet, we somehow convince ourselves we possess the qualities of faith, love, and hope, by the money we decide to spend prior to Christmas Day. By starving ourselves, borrowing money, putting stipulations on our neighbor, by competition, greed and jealousy, we proclaim our love and faith to our Creator. Each year we are repetitious in our efforts. We do everything possible to live up to our expectations. We forget the birth of hope. Money exceeds our faith, and our actions become destructive. Christmas then becomes a “business of riches.” Towards our fellow man, our siblings, ourselves- we have become untrue.

A new year rolls around and our thoughts begin to correlate with our bank account. Reality begins to sink in and of all the joy we may convince ourselves of, we are now broke. Any common sense we may have once possessed has once again eluded us. Our excuse, perhaps is “Well it is only once a year!” Only each of us can decide how much a smile upon ones face is worth. If it is worth a million dollars can we afford it? Is this Christmas? Hallelujah!

Loves hides away in the shadows of our own mind. If any sorrow of any significance arises, each of us must handle it by our own conscience. Christmas should be prosperous, yet gentle and joyful. Each of us chooses the route we travel and live with the consequences.

Let us never forget the true meaning of Christmas. This birth required no expense other than the dignity and respect we would give to our fellow man, and ourselves. An hour or two dedicated to this most precious gift once a year is the cheapest of any monetary expense upon man- it is free! Hallelujah!

BOSTON MOUNTAIN FIRE ASSOCIATION NEWS

By Pam Kugel

The Boston Mountain firefighters and first Responders are finishing the year with more than 240 emergency calls.

Boston Mountain Volunteer personnel have together, logged more than 1110 hours. These men and women are dedicated to their community. These volunteers have assisted with medical calls, dire happenings of all kinds, MVAs and standby's in all kinds of weather. You may ask any of our personnel a about an emergency call- where was it, what was it, who was it and you won't get an answer. The's because we are bound by the Privacy Act.

Winter is here. Please prepare yourselves when traveling. Think of the what if's.

What if you get stalled in traffic, have a flat tire or are in an accident. Even if you have heat in your vehicle, in a short time it can get COLD! A suggestion is always take a coat with you. Have children wear their coats. It's good to have a blanket or two in your vehicle. If in an accident when ice is on the roads it could delay an ambulance and first responders to reach you.

There are still many address signs to be picked up.

Boston Mountain Fire Association wishes All a safe and Happy Holidays!!

Hanging Out in Downtown Winslow on Saturday Mornings - The Tradition Lives!

By Dianna Price

Winslow has a long history of folks gathering downtown on Saturday mornings to hang out, drink coffee and do a little shopping. This tradition continues. From 8:30 AM until noon, the historic Winslow Mercantile is open with coffee and donuts. Our friendly barista will make you everything from a latte to a hot chocolate with whipped creme. The "Coffee Klatch" begins to arrive around 10:00AM. To become a member of the Coffee Klatch, simply show up. The Coffee Klatch also has a Facebook page which has been very useful for distributing up to date news and information to the Winslow masses.

Across the street from the Mercantile is the Farmer's Market. Local homesteaders bring a variety of homegrown goods and food. Organic produce, herbs, berries, vintage canning jars, goat's milk, goat cheese, artisan multigrain bread, herbal soap, baked goods, cinnamon rolls, soy candles, sourdough bread, and kombucha have been regularly available at our small friendly farmer's market. Shane, our local blacksmith, brings all types of handmade rustic home decor, lamps, wind chimes, candle holders, knives, towel and toilet paper holders made with metal. He also builds rustic benches, tables, and shelving from reclaimed old wood, and offers them at farmer's market. Even though the weather is chilly, we are still bringing the goods to Farmer's Market as long as folks show up. Otherwise it will start back up in the spring. To be a farmer's market vendor, simply show up with your goods, usually around 8:30 or so.

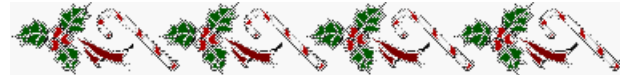

Saturday morning Drum Circle Jam is a new activity we would like to invite everyone to experience. The drum circle will meet at the Mercantile in Downtown Winslow at 11:00 and start playing by 11:15. We will play inside the Mercantile if the weather is cold, windy or wet. The drums and percussion instruments emerge for a funky community jam session. Drum circles are popular, open to everyone, and just plain fun! There are all levels of drummers who participate - from professional to beginner. If you do not have a drum, but would like to participate, bring a rattle, tambourine, hula hoop or a bucket with a couple of sticks. Drummer Larry Buell played a sweet rhythm with two sticks and a couple of select pieces of firewood one Saturday, to demonstrate how expensive equipment is not necessary. Drummers from Fayetteville have started to make the drive to Winslow on Saturday morning to "jam." If the weather permits, we will drum. We post updates on the Facebook page called "Arkansas Drum Circle."

To learn drumming techniques, Winslow's Daniel Dean will be teaching drum lessons at Ozark Folkways. Dan is the drummer for the band "Candy Lee and the Sweets." For those interested in learning traditional African drumming and/or dance, there is a Thursday night class at Washington Elementary in Fayetteville. The cost is $10 for about two and a half hours of energetic hand busting drumming taught by Angelo, an African drummer who toured internationally in a drum and dance troupe. Check out "The Visitor," a movie available at the Winslow library, to see the movie that ignited interest in drum circles throughout the nation.

The first Saturday of the month is recycle day. Bring cardboard, paper, plastic 1 & 2 only, aluminum cans and glass to be sorted and recycled. This is from 8:00 - noon.

Saturday mornings are still socially active in downtown Winslow. Prevent cabin fever and come hang out for a while!

Administration Tests Fixes That Would Allow Insurers, Brokers To Enroll More Consumers

WebMD News from Kaiser Health News

By Julie Appleby
Sun, Nov 24 2013

Insurers and the Obama administration are testing fixes to health-care.gov designed to allow insurers and web-based brokers to directly enroll consumers who qualify for subsidies under the health law.

Allowing insurers and online brokers to directly enroll customers in subsidized coverage could be key to signing up the millions of people the government had projected would gain coverage this year -- particularly if the glitch-ridden federal site continues to have problems. But so far, some of those same technical difficulties have prevented most insurers and brokers from being able to do that.

Late Friday afternoon, the administration said it had made progress in tweaking the website's design, and was launching a pilot test of the fixes with insurers in Texas, Ohio and Florida. If successful, those fixes would roll out to insurers nationwide.

"Some issuers are already doing direct enrollment and many others will soon begin to take advantage of this process," said administration spokeswoman Julie Bataille.

Some industry experts had expressed skepticism about the government's ability to make the site work smoothly for most people, and earlier this month had pushed for an alternative that would bypass the most troubled parts of healthcare.gov.

That would "allow us to enroll the backlog of subsidy-hopeful individuals we encounter every day online," said Gary Lauer, CEO of online brokerage eHealth in a letter sent to the administration in early November.

Industry executives who met with the president last week urged him to resolve the problems preventing them from directly enrolling consumers in subsidized coverage, saying they could be particularly helpful in the 36 states served by the troubled federal website and in states such as Oregon that are running their own websites, but experiencing difficulties. The newly extended deadline for signing up for coverage that takes effect Jan. 1 is Dec. 23.

“If direct enrollment can get up and running, health plans can be unleashed to do what they do best, which is enroll people,” said Robert Zirkelbach, spokesman for the trade group America’s Health Insurance Plans.

Insurers can already directly enroll customers who want a health plan and don’t qualify for a subsidy, which is available for people who earn up to 400 percent of the federal poverty level, or about $46,000 for an individual.

Even though the health law allows direct enrollment, some advocates fear that consumers won’t see the full choice of plans available if they shop on a single insurer’s website, rather than seeing all their choices by going to healthcare.gov, a state-based marketplace or an online brokerage. Online brokerages are required to show shoppers all options available in a region, but insurers are not.

The biggest challenge getting direct enrollment functioning has been linking insurers and brokers with the information they need to determine consumers’ eligibility for subsidies, including their citizenship status and income verification.

The way that is supposed to work in the 36 states served by the federal website is that consumers who start out on an insurer’s or online broker’s website are automatically transferred to healthcare.gov to determine if they qualify for a subsidy, then transferred back once that information is confirmed. Often, that transfer has gotten caught up in the error messages and other difficulties that have plagued the federal website since it opened Oct. 1.

“What they need is a way ... to get a subsidy eligibility determination without having to go through the whole healthcare.gov rigmarole,” said Dan Mendelson, CEO of Avalere Health, a Washington D.C.-based consulting firm.

Administration officials said last week that steady improvements are being made to healthcare.gov, and that waiting times and error messages are well below where they were just two weeks ago. They said they also have made progress in fixing systems designed to let insurers directly enroll subsidy-eligible customers.

While those fixes are still being tested, some industry experts say a better solution might be to allow insurers and brokers to directly connect with the “federal data hub,” the portal through which subsidy calculations are made after applicants’ information is cross checked with several government agencies, including the IRS and Homeland Security.

States running their own online marketplaces already use such a direct connection.

“Please consider directing CMS to allow eHealth to directly connect with the federal data hub, post haste,” eHealth’s CEO Lauer said in his letter.

Ehealth officials say they have not heard back from the administration, but are now testing the tweaks the administration has made to the existing system. Still, the current design is cumbersome because it transfers applicants from one website to another and is “is not an optimal way to leverage the experience and expertise” of websites like eHealth, said spokesman John Desser, vice president of government affairs.

But a direct connection between the hub and insurers or brokerages isn’t likely to happen because of security concerns, said Dan Schuyler, a director with Leavitt Partners, a Salt Lake City-based consulting firm advising states about their online marketplaces.

“They’re not going to let carriers or web brokers have direct access,” said Schuyler. “From a security and privacy perspective, it would be an administrative nightmare.”

JOKE TIME

We all need a laugh once in a while. This play on words that I received in my email really caught my eye. I think we can all relate to some of these at one time or another.

Jo Kyle

My Travel Plans for 2013-2014

I have been in many places, but I've never been in Cahoots. Apparently, you can't go alone. You have to be in Cahoots with someone.

I've also never been in Cognito. I hear no one recognizes you there.

I have, however, been in Sane. They don't have an airport; you have to be driven there.

I have made several trips there, thanks to my children, friends, family and work.

I would like to go to Conclusions, but you have to jump, and I'm not too much on physical activity anymore.

I have also been in Doubt. That is a sad place to go, and I try not to visit there too often.

I've been in Flexible, but only when it was very important to stand firm.

Sometimes I'm in Capable, and I go there more often as I'm getting older.

One of my favorite places to be is in Suspense! It really gets the adrenalin flowing and pumps up the old heart! At my age I need all the stimuli I can get!

I may have been in Continent, and I don't remember what country I was in. It's an age thing. They tell me it is very wet and damp there.

PLEASE DO YOUR PART!

Today is one of the many National Mental Health Days throughout the year. You can do your bit by remembering to pass this along to at least one unstable person. My job is done!

Life is too short for negative drama and petty things.

So laugh insanely, love truly and forgive quickly! Well that forgiveness part is up to you!!!

From one unstable person to another... I hope everyone is happy in your head - we're all doing pretty well in mine.

Winslow Community Thanksgiving Service

By Mary Bromley

If you missed the Thanksgiving Service, you truly missed a blessing. Bro. Perry Hall welcomed everyone to the service. And said he was thankful to live in this country. Roy Don Biswell opened in prayer.

Jay Branson asked all veterans to stand and thanked them for their service to our country. He welcomed each of the churches that came out.

Marsha Cooley, pastor of the Blackburn Community Church said a few words, then members of the church sang two songs, one of which was written by Sonja Balch about Thanksgiving.

Destry Burnett from the Boston Mountain Fellowship Church said we needed to get in the Bible like we never had before, take the Word and learn it. He then sang Learning to Lean on Jesus, a favorite song of his father. Trent Hampton, Pastor of Boston Mountain Fellowship Church said he was thankful for God's love. His singers sang a song about His love never fails, Your love never gives up and your love never runs out.

Jerry Bromley, pastor of Bunyard Community said his church didn't have any singers but he would read some scripture when he speaks about the Relief Fund.

Greg Dold, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Winslow, said it was an honor and a privilege to be a part of the service. The singers sang Have Faith In God, and Because He Lives. They then sang a fun song from the 70's by the Imperials called Glen Jorgenson shared a few words about the folks we have lost recently. He asked Beverly Simpson to share her tribute to Barbara Ashbaugh. She was one of the founders of the Winslow Relief Council.

Jerry Bromley returned to the podium to speak about the Relief Fund. He thanked the Assembly of God Church for hosting the Service this year. He thanked Glen Jorgenson for being a good Christian friend and helping him with the Relief. He thanked everyone that donated to the Relief Fund. He said it was so good to be here in this service. The offering this year was $1,537.00.

J.D. Branson said he was thankful for Jesus, He is the only way the only way to Heaven.

Larry Smith, pastor of the Hilltop Chapel read 1st John 1:9. He said to know the Word for time is running out. He thanked Bro Perry Hall for what he is doing for the community.

John Moore, pastor of the Methodist Church said it was a privilege to be here. They sang Let's Go Down To The River, He Has Made Me Glad, and This World Is Not My Home.

Roy Biswell, pastor of Winfrey Valley Tabernacle was unable to attend but was represented by Greg Biswell. He asked all the pastors to stand up, then asked the audience, "Are you thankful for your pastor?" The crowd affirmed that they were. He then read 1st Timothy 2:1-3. He said you need to be praying for your pastor. Their singers sang, This Little Light Of Mine and one other.

The Assembly of God Church singers sang T'is so sweet to trust in Jesus. On Christ the Solid Rock I Stand, and It Is Well With My Soul.

Bro Perry Hall read Psalm 95, he said he loved that book in the Bible. He spoke about the music and Worship service was never meant to be corrupted. He read a scripture out of Isaiah. 14. He had an Invitation Service for anyone that needed Jesus or prayer. Bro Perry told about the new building for the Food Pantry. It had grown so that they had groceries in the Sunday School rooms and now they had a place to store everything and work out of. He thanked everyone for letting him work for the Lord. It was the consensus of the Pastors and Laymen that time was running out and we needed to be ready to meet the Lord. There were around people that came out for the Service.

Enter His gates with Thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: Be Thankful unto Him and bless His Name."
Psalm 100:4

The Winslow United Methodist Church will hold a Christmas Eve service at 7:00 P.M.

Never Thought of This

Jesus died over 2000 years ago.
Nobody has ever referred to him
as the late Jesus,
Not even the heathens.
Nowhere in history.
Nowhere has He EVER been referred to in past tense!
He is the Living God!
