The Birth of American Independence

HONORING A HISTORIC MILESTONE

Two and a half centuries ago, a group of visionary leaders assembled in Philadelphia to draft one of the earliest documents proclaiming the colonies' independence from Great Britain. This significant event marked a turning point in the quest for self-governance and liberty, laying the foundation for a new nation. Their actions ignited the pursuit of freedom and established principles that continue to guide the United States.

COMMEMORATING THE OCCASION

This year serves as a commemoration of the historic gathering in Philadelphia 250 years ago, where forward-thinking individuals crafted a declaration asserting independence. Their bold decision paved the way for American self-governance and the birth of liberty, marking a defining moment in the nation's history. The country, named the United States of America, celebrates this milestone with pride.

WINSLOW'S CELEBRATION

Tombstone Tales, Part 1

By Tombstone Donnelly

I've been told that once upon a time I was found in the tall grass of a city cemetery way down in Port Isabel, Texas. If you look at a map of Texas, it's the point situated way down at the very bottom. It took my humans two days to drive up here to Winslow from down where it's hotter than Hades, they say. This column will chronicle our journey and our new life in the mountains of Northwest Arkansas.

My spare human, aka Mama Bear, likes to tell people that we live in "Rickman Holler," which I'm pretty sure she just made up in her head. She's also fond of telling people that she lives in the old stomping grounds of Frank and Jesse James, like that makes it more alluring and romantic or something. She might be just trying to make herself sound more interesting, is my guess.

But, let's get back to me. Mama Bear was the editor of a newspaper in Port Isabel and she sent a human named Patricia to the city's cemetery to check out a report of malfeasance involving the mayor getting preferential treatment for their family tombstones. It wound up being a political stunt during election season and nothing to write about. That's when I mewed as loud as I could from where I sat alone in the nearby grass.

Mama Bear heard it through the phone and said, "Oh my god, find that little baby!" I was only about 6 weeks old at the time, so I guess it was okay to call me that.

Patricia is a big animal rescuer, I'm told. She found me and plucked me right up which was scary, so I clung to her for dear life! She searched for any other littermates or a mama cat but came up empty except for the tiny precious cargo that fit right in her hand (me!!). Within minutes, I was brought to Papa and Mama Bear's house and they've been keeping me captive ever since.

I mean, it's not bad, but I always have to ask the lazy humans to open the door for me which is annoying. Also, I shouldn't have to ask for food or treats. They also keep saying that chocolate ice cream will somehow kill me, but they seem to be able to eat it with impunity. I think they just don't want to share it. But I digress.

I don't remember how I got into my predicament in the cemetery. I wasn't dehydrated or starving, and I wasn't covered in ticks or fleas. I was just there, frightened and alone. I was pretty far from the nearest home for a kitten my size. There's a feral colony of other black and white tuxedos in the area, so who knows how I got there? It will have to remain a mystery. And this was all just to say that I was named Tombstone after the place where I was "gotcha'd" by the nearly intolerable humans.

I will thank Patricia for thinking of that name for me, though, because I'd like to say that I grew into it as I got older as I unleash my reign of terror on the forest creatures in Rickman Holler. Mama Bear is always calling me her big handsome boy and all that and seems very impressed with my hunting skills. She freaks out and tries to save any birds I might find, but I have free reign of mice and rats and voles and no one seems to care about that. That is how I tend to spend my days between cat naps.

If you happen to see me around the neighborhood, I'm still somewhat feral and don't trust strangers. If you try to pick me up, someone might get hurt (hint, it won't be me). I sometimes let kindly and patient humans touch me because I kind of like being petted. I just hate being restricted in my movements. I never know when something will show up that will trigger my flight or fight response. You've been forewarned.

Until next time, stay chill.

P.S. My Mama Bear goes by Cat Donnelly, but she's a human and not a cat, so I find that really confusing. She has not been able to explain that whole thing to my satisfaction, either. I bet she is afflicted with cat envy. If you see her, we are separate entities. I'm the real cat. She's an imposter!

Could this beast be alive today?

Revelation. 13:11 And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon. 13:12 And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. 13:13 And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, 13:14 And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by [the means of] those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live. 13:15 And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed. 13:16 And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: 13:17 And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. 13:18

Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number [is] Six hundred threescore [and] six.

From the book 'Maranatha chapter 161 "How the Image to the Beast Evolves"

He exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. Revelation 13:12.

In order for the United States to form an image of the beast, the religious power must so control the civil government that the authority of the state will also be employed by the church to accomplish her own ends. . . The "image to the beast" represents that form of apostate Protestantism which will be developed when the Protestant churches shall seek the aid of the civil power for the enforcement of their dogmas. . . .

When Sunday observance shall be enforced by law, and the world shall be enlightened concerning the obligation of the true Sabbath, then whoever shall transgress the command of God, to obey a precept which has no higher authority than that of Rome, will thereby honor popery above God. He is paying homage to Rome and to the power which enforces the institution ordained by Rome. He is worshipping the beast and his image. As men then reject the institution which God has declared to be the sign of His authority, and honor in its stead that which Rome has chosen as the token of her supremacy, they will thereby accept the sign of allegiance to Rome--"the mark of the beast." And it is not until the issue is thus plainly set before the people, and they are brought to choose between the commandments of God and the commandments of men, that those who continue in transgression will receive "the mark of the beast." . . . In the issue of the contest all Christendom will be divided into two great classes--those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus, and those who worship the beast and his image and receive his mark. Although church and state will unite their power to compel "all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond" (Revelation 13:16), to receive "the mark of the beast," yet the people of God will not receive it. The prophet of Patmos beholds "them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God" and singing the song of Moses and the Lamb. Revelation 15:2, 3.

For a more complete and detailed account of this subject I highly recommend you go to WUP 241 Second Beast Rising, Sunday Law on the Horizon- Walter Veith

Revelation 13:8 And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

13:9 If any man have an ear, let him hear.
