BOSTON MOUNTAIN FIRE DEPARTMENT NEWS

Boston Mountain Fire Dept. is holding its annual fish fry and auction October 12 starting at 5 PM at station #2 across from the ball park.

We would appreciate donations for the auction. All donations are tax deductible. Items can be brought to the station the evening of October 7 or 10th from 6:45 to 9:00 PM, the day of the fish fry or can be picked up by one of the firefighters anytime.

Adults $8.00 12 yrs and older
Children $4.00 5 yrs to 12 years

Come and support your fire dept. ! This is the major fund raiser for the year. All donations are tax deductible.
This is an "all you can eat" meal. It's dine in or carry out, so come join us and have a good time.

The dept. has been busy this year. As to date we have logged more than 220 medical, fire and standby calls. BMFD also have responded to community service calls.

The fire dept. would like to remind people that you may have a green reflector driveway sign waiting for you. This is a community service project that would help both the resident and fire dept. to reach in case of an emergency.

REMEMBER FISH FRY AND AUCTION - OCTOBER 12TH, 5 PM

BMFD is looking for a few good people to join us. Anyone interested come to our meeting on the first or third Monday night at 7 PM and get to know us.

LET'S HAVE A REUNION FOR THE STUDENTS 1970-1979 (OR ANY CLASS)

The time for reminiscing has been scheduled for all Winslow High School students. If you attended school in the 70's at Winslow we encouraged you to attend, regardless of if or where you graduated.

For the celebration to be successful I need everyone to do their part and get involved. Please contact your classmates and spread the word. My reason for gathering a great group of wonderful, intelligent, warm-hearted people together is simple ... I've missed you! I would like to see and get to know you again. I would like to touch base, to renew old friendships, make some "new" ones and to remember those who are no longer with us. I hope this will be the first of many annual gatherings to come.

There will be a register book for you to sign name, address, phone, etc. This will make it easier to contact everyone about a future reunion.

Where: Golden Corral
4507 N College Ave
Fayetteville, AR

When: October 19, 2013 6:00 PM
Everyone will be responsible for their own dinners.

"Together again naturally" just like the song! Remembering our past with good conversation, a life-time of memories that only you can bring to our gathering. Let's get nostalgic. I can't wait! Please I truly would like to see you there. Please contact Janet Foster at 479-225-8977. If no answer leave a message with your number so she can call you back.

FRIENDS OF THE WINSLOW LIBRARY

Congratulations Bob Dirgo on winning the $100.00 Gift Certificate from Harps Store in West Fork.

Thank you to everyone who participated in the Harps card drawing. Be looking for more fund raisers put on by the Friends. Remember all proceeds go to help the library.

Sept. 13, 2013 -- The Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare, already has brought big changes to the U.S. health care system.

You may have gotten a refund check from your health insurance company, for example. Or maybe the last time you visited your doctor you weren't charged for some preventive services like vaccines, certain cancer screening tests, and tests for heart disease and diabetes.

And more change is coming.

This fall, many people will start shopping for beefed-up health coverage through new online Marketplaces, also called Exchanges. The new policies will take effect in January, and people who don't have adequate insurance coverage in 2014 may face a penalty on the taxes they file in 2015.

Feeling lost about what all this means for you? A recent survey by the Kaiser Family Foundation found that slightly more than half of all Americans (51%) say they're still not sure what the health care reform law means for them. About 4 in 10 people aren't sure if the law is still in effect. (It is.)

If you count yourself among the confused, don't fret. This article covers seven surprising things you need to know about this brave new world of required health insurance coverage.

1. Most people won't pay a penalty.

The new law does require most people to carry health insurance or pay a penalty when they file their taxes. In 2014, the penalty will be $95 per adult and $47.50 for each child, or 1% of your income, whichever is greater. The maximum penalty for a family is $285.

What you may not know, though, is that 9 out of 10 working-aged adults won't be subject to the penalty because most people already have insurance that meets the law, or they don't make enough money to be fined, according to experts.

2. Oct. 1 isn't a deadline for you, but it is for the government.

You may have heard that everyone is scrambling to meet the law's Oct. 1 deadline. Breathe easy. You don't have to do anything by Oct. 1. But the federal government -- or your state -- is on the hook, and your employer probably is, too.

Oct. 1 is the day the new insurance Marketplaces are set to open in every state. The Marketplaces have web sites that offer one-stop shopping for new health insurance. Fill out a three-page form, and you can find out if you qualify for financial assistance and see what policies you can buy. Open enrollment runs from October 2013 through March 2014. Some states chose to operate their own Marketplaces. Others left it up to the federal government. There also will be trained “navigators” in your community to help you understand and sign up for insurance.

3. Most people who are uninsured will qualify for financial assistance to buy a new policy.

A major goal of the Affordable Care Act is to help people get good-quality and reasonably priced health coverage if they don't already have it. That's why the government will help people pay for new policies if they make less than 400% of the federal poverty level, or $45,960 for an individual or $94,200 for a family of four.

About 26 million adults under age 65 who are uninsured will be required to buy insurance or face a penalty. Of those, two-thirds can get the coverage for free or at a reduced cost, according to the nonprofit Urban Institute. That includes 11 million people who will be eligible for a government subsidy (a type of financial aid) and about 8 million who can get the coverage for free or nearly free through Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP).

"Most people, most of the uninsured, and about half of people buying individual insurance already, will be eligible for tax credits," says Larry Levitt, senior vice president of the Kaiser Family Foundation.

To get the new tax credits, though, you'll need to buy a policy through one of the new state Marketplaces.

The lower your income, the less you will pay.

"I think many people will be pleasantly surprised that they qualify for help ... and that they have a selection of plans that will serve them," says Cheryl Fish-Parcham. She is deputy director of health policy at Families USA, a nonprofit group.

4. Women get important new benefits, and they won't be charged more than men.

The Affordable Care Act is expanding health insurance coverage for everyone, but women will arguably see some of the biggest benefits from the law.

Many are already in effect. For example, if you meet age requirements, certain health checks are offered at no charge to patients, not even copays. These include mammograms, bone scans for osteoporosis, Pap smears and pelvic exams for cervical cancer, colonoscopies for colorectal cancer, and a host of other health tests. Birth control is now free to women, as is the doctor's visit to figure out which kind of contraception you might need.

Starting in January, a woman can't be charged more than a man for health insurance. Right now, 36 states allow insurers to charge women more -- and 92% of popular plans in those states charge women between 20% and 40% more than they charged a man of the same age, according to a 2012 report from the National Women's Law Center.

"So now we'll have a new world in which women will not have to pay more than men for the same insurance policies," says Lauren Birchfield Kennedy. She is senior health policy council for the National Partnership for Women and Families.

4. Women get important new benefits, and they won't be charged more than men.

Also coming in 2014 are big benefits for self-employed women. In the past, most insurance policies available to individuals, rather than through an employer, didn't cover maternity care. With insurance, women pay, on average, about $2,000 to $3,000 out-of-pocket to have a baby, according to a recent report by Childbirth Connection. Without insurance, the costs for a healthy birth can be several times that much, and the costs of a complicated pregnancy can run into the tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In January, all insurance plans sold to individuals will have to cover maternity care. They'll also pick up the costs of breastfeeding supplies, like breast pumps.

"We were pleased and very excited to see these services included in the new law and robustly implemented," Birchfield Kennedy says. "I think it's going to be a game-changer for women to have these available under their health plan."

5. You can buy health insurance even if you're already sick. And you'll pay the same price for coverage as a healthy person who is the same age.

In the past, insurance companies could refuse coverage to people with health problems.

As part of the application process, companies combed through patients' medical records, looking for any sign that they might already be ill.

And they had a lot of leeway to define these pre-existing conditions, which could range from serious and ongoing problems like diabetes or cancer, to a long-forgotten ailment like an old sports injury.

Companies could deny coverage altogether or might've offered limited or more expensive policies that put coverage out of reach for many. A recent report from Families USA found that 1 out of 5 adults under age 65 has a pre-existing condition that could have disqualified them from health coverage under the old rules.

The new law gets rid of this rating system. Insurance companies must now cover everyone, regardless of their health. And they can't charge you more if you're sick or you were once treated for an illness or injury.

Prices will be based on three things: your age, where you live, and whether or not you smoke.

6. You'll be hearing from your employer soon.

By Oct. 1, many people will get a letter from their employers. Companies that do at least $500,000 in business each year are required to send these letters.

The letters are to notify employees that their state Marketplaces offer new insurance options for people who qualify. They also have important information you'll need to help you figure out if you're eligible to buy insurance on your Marketplace. That includes whether your employer offers coverage and whether it's offered to dependents. It also includes whether the plan meets the "minimum value standard" set by the law. A plan has to cover at least 60% of your health costs to meet the standard.

If the insurance at your job costs too much or doesn't cover enough of your health costs, you may be eligible to shop on your Marketplace and be eligible for financial assistance.

7. The health insurance that's available should improve whether you buy a new plan through the Marketplace or not.

For most people, the best deals will come from health insurance policies that are part of your benefits package at work or bought through the new Marketplaces, because the Marketplaces are the only places you can use tax credits to help pay for your plan.

But if you're self-employed and make too much money to qualify for tax credits, it may be worth your while to look for coverage outside the Marketplaces, says Levitt of the Kaiser Family Foundation.

Under the law, all new plans sold on the individual market will have to meet a set of minimum requirements. These requirements vary a bit from state to state, but all new plans will now have to cover 10 essential benefits, including some that were often missing from individually purchased plans in the past, such as coverage for mental health problems, substance abuse, and maternity care.

Why look outside your Marketplace? You may find the same insurance companies, "but they're offering a slightly different plan, maybe with a different network of providers and a different cost-sharing structure" that may better suit your needs, Levitt says. Or you may find plans from companies that decided not to participate in the Marketplace.

Be aware, though, that Marketplace plans may have lower administrative costs than plans you might buy through an insurance broker. So far, administrative costs being added to plans in the Marketplaces range from about 1.5% in states that are running their own Marketplace to 3.5% in states where the federal government is operating the Marketplace, Levitt says. Meanwhile, commissions to brokers, which are added to the premium, have historically been in the double digits, he says.

“Comedy Corner”

By D. Gesn ©2013

Runnin' Bear Dog and I have slowed way down, gathering the gray hairs as we both age. I, myself, seem to be leaning towards that “second childhood- event.” My memory seems to be fading in and out, although I do remember a few happenings from the past. I'm curious if at 61 years of age, almost 62 now, if I could possibly get away with “trick or treat!”

Seldom do I hunt or fish anymore. There's too much work involved, and I always got my deer, squirrels and rabbits. When my dad passed away, I had to hunt or fish it, skin, scrape, clean and cook it, then; everyone else helped me eat it! Ah, those were the days. I do miss the hunt for the Big one, that ol' buck hiding in the shadows, or a large mouth bass playing hide and seek behind an ol' log!

Well my mind fluctuates at times, mostly when my imagination goes astray. At intervals I go down to the creek and talk to the little people. Not everyone can see them and that's probably a good thing! Oh well, it beats the 'hec 'out of conversing with myself. (Lighten up folks, it's just humor.) There's one good thing that actually happens when you are caught talking to yourself. People think you are “nuts” and avoid you. You want some people to think that because you may not want to be around them in the first place. Hey, it works for me! Hallelujah!

I'm not going to dress up for “trick or treat”. Runnin Bear doesn't want to dress up either. We are just going to appear as we are – two ol' fogies pretending to be young. Well it's too early for Santa and the Easter Bunny (a rabbit that lays chocolate eggs- and you think I'm nuts!), The Great Pumpkin has not arrived, and we're just getting older. “Come on Squirt, let's go and get a bag of candy!” “Woof, Woof, Woof!” Hallelujah!

GRANDPARENTS RAISING GRANDCHILDREN.

Submitted by Pam Kugel

Children receiving benefits from a grand parent

Can a child receive benefits on the record of a grandparent?

A dependent grandchild or step-grandchild may receive benefits on the record of a grandparent if the following requirements are met:

The grandchild's natural or adoptive parents are deceased or disabled:

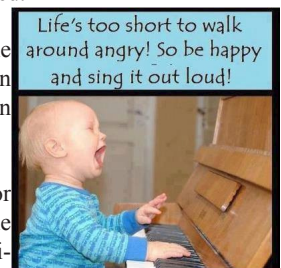

At the time the grandparent became entitled to retirement or disability insurance benefits or died; or

At the beginning of the grandparent's period of disability which continued until he or she became entitled to disability or retirement insurance benefits or died.

The grandchild was legally adopted by the grandparent's surviving spouse in an adoption decreed by a court of competent jurisdiction within the United States.

The grandchild's natural or adopting parent or stepparent must not have been living in the same household and making regular contributions to the child's support at the time the grandparent died.

The grandchild must have lived with the grandparent in the United States before reaching age 18 and received at least one-half support from the grandparent for the year before the month the grandparent began receiving retirement or disability benefits or died.

PRAYERWALKING

In a letter to Timothy in Ephesus, Paul wrote:

" 1. Therefore I exhort first of all that supplications, prayers, intercession, and giving of thanks be made for all men, 2. for kings and all who are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in godliness and reverence. 3. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, 4. who desires all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth." (I Timothy 2:1-4)

Intercession praying can go beyond the walls of our churches. We saw the "See You At the Pole" groups active on our school grounds in the local area on September 24 and 25 with prayer at the flag pole and prayerwalks around the campuses. Prayers for the students, teachers and staff, and the school administrators can work miracles. Especially as participation in these activities grows. This type of group praying is called on-site intercession prayerwalking. It is simply praying in the very places where we expect God to bring forth His answers.

This Fall, Winslow First Baptist Church will be organizing "Prayer Walks" in and around the community of Winslow. This is the perfect time of year to get out and experience God's beautiful creation and get closer to Him through prayer at the same time. We will be keeping a low profile and walk about on public streets and roads in groups of 2-3 people praying for our community and seeking places where God wants us to work with Him.

If you are interested in what we are doing or have any questions about this activity, feel free to ask the group or call Dan Browning @479- 841-2786.

A POSITIVE THOUGHT

If God had a refrigerator, your picture would be on it.

If He had a wallet, your photo would be in it.

He sends you flowers every spring, and a sunrise every morning.

Whenever you want to talk, He'll listen.

He could live anywhere in the universe, and He chose your heart.

What about the Christmas gift He sent you in Bethlehem ; not to mention that Friday at Calvary .

Face it, He's crazy about you.

I thought this was mighty special, just like YOU.

Pass this on and brighten someone's day, and remember . ...

A New Men's Group Study The Quest for Authentic Manhood

A new Men's Group study, The Quest for Authentic Manhood is being conducted every other Tuesday night at the Winslow First Baptist Church at 7:00pm. The next session will be on October 8. This is the first of Dr. Robert Lewis' Men's Fraternity studies that brings men together to honestly examine their lives and to take the courageous steps necessary to embrace authentic biblical manhood. All men in the Winslow community are invited to attend. The study consists of a DVD presentation of about 50 minutes in length with 30-40 minutes of discussion after each session. Many have commented that "these messages have blessed them with a new sense of their own masculine identity, giving them a personal manhood vision, as well as insight into what God had in mind when He first brought man into the world".

The Quest for Authentic Manhood sets out to answer some question that are universal to men.

- What makes a man a man? A real man?
- How does one become a real man?
- Is there a moment when it happens?
- What is it that holds men back from their true masculine destiny?
- How should authentic manhood express itself today?

Come join us for an experience that will help you to become a better man, husband, and father.

Contact Pastor Greg Dold at 479-287-7247.

A Message From Facebook

A little girl was once looking at a sheep as it ate green grass. She thought to herself how nice and white the sheep looked against the green grass. Then it began to snow. The little girl then thought how dirty the sheep looked against the white snow. It was the same sheep, but with a different background. When we compare ourselves to the background of man's standards, we come up reasonably clean. However, when we compare ourselves to the snow-white righteousness of the Law of God (the Ten Commandments), we see that "we are all as an unclean thing, and our righteous deeds are as filthy rags" (see Isaiah 64:6).
